

AWARD RECIPIENTS

Dr. Arthur Furst, Vice-Chairman and Senior Member of the Neo-Life Scientific Advisory Board, recently enjoyed the distinct honor of addressing more than 1200 of his colleagues at the International Toxicology Congress in Japan. He was invited to speak on "the toxicity of metals," a topic to which he has devoted years of research.

Following his address, Dr. Furst was recognized for his "pioneering work on metals and cancer," and presented with the prestigious Klaus Schwarz Commemorative Medal. He was the only scientist to receive the medal at this Congress.

Klaus Schwarz discovered Selenium and Chromium as essential trace metals. In recognition of his contributions to science, the commemorative medal was designed to acknowledge significant contributions to the study of metals. This award is not presented at regular intervals; it is a special honor, bestowed only to those who are particularly deserving. Neo-Life is extremely proud to be associated with Dr. Arthur Furst, a true pioneer of modern science.
